All Boston Patrolmen Questioned on Union

INDICT WHITMAN ELOPERS

OFFICERS GRILLED SINGLY

Patrolmen's Answers to Questions Are Sent to Commissioner

Police Commissioner Curtis today continued his investigation into the policemen's union, paying particular attention to its formation and to the identity of those around whom it centred. Several of the officers of the union were closely questioned by the commissioner and Superintendent Crowley.

A questionnaire was prepared and each officer interrogated regarding the organization. They were asked particularly as to the first time they heard of the union plan; where they heard it and from whom they heard of it. Then they were asked just who were the men who did most of the work of organization, and whether or not that work was done during police time.

The questioning the union leaders were subjected to was in a degree similar to that which all the members of the department are undergoing. It differs only in that the ordinary union man is being questioned by the captain, whereas with the leaders the two heads of the department are doing the questioning.

RECALL CAPTAIN SULLIVAN.

There were few other developments at police headquarters today. It was announced that Captain James P. Sullivan of the City Hall avenue station, who had just started on a ten-days' leave of absence in addition to his vacation, had been summoned back to duty. In his absence Lieutenant William Allen has had charge of the station and has attended all the conferences at police headquarters.

When the union leaders summoned to headquarters began to arrive

Dr. Eliot Identifies Property in Loot of Berwin

Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Society and son of President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, identified as belonging to him antiques and heirlooms found among the loot discovered in the arrest of Harry Berwin, the confessed perpetrator of thirty daylight robberies.

The identification was made at police headquarters today, at about the same time that Berwin was pointing out the residence of Dr. Eliot, at No. 25 Reservoir street, Cambridge, to police inspectors, as one of the places he had entered and robbed.

Among the property claimed by Dr. Eliot was a large seal ring with an intaglio representing an elephant's head and the initials "S. A. E." This ring, he said, belonged to his grandfather, Samuel A. Eliot who was Mayor of Boston from 1827 to 1833 and used the seal on official business.

The police have other articles for which they are seeking owners, a suit of clothes made by a Providence tailor being among them.

FISH COMPANIES YIELD; STRIKE IS ENDED

Gloucester Firms Make Concessions and Men Now Have a Say in Naming Prices

New England's fishermen strike was officially ended today when the salt fish interests of Gloucester came to terms with the Fishermen's Union of the Atlantic. The Gloucester men had been holding out against the union since the general settlement last Friday.

The Gordon-Pew Company, the biggest firm in New England handling cured fish, was the first to make concessions. Smaller firms followed, and today the unions ratified the agreement, and sanctioned a return of all the men to work.

The men won their fight to have a say in setting the price of fish. Haddock will sell for 2¼ cents a pound, cured and 4½ cents fresh. Other fish prices under the agreement are: Large cod, 4½ cents a pound; small cod, 2¾; bake, 2½ cents; pollock, 2 to 2 1-2 cents; cusk, 1 to 2¾ cents.

BAY STATE TRUSTEES DEFY MEN

Refuse to Join Carmen in Overthrowing Agreement; Strike Impends

Declaring arbitration to be the only safeguard which the public has against strikes, and that it would be to the best interests of the public to submit to a strike rather than have the agreement to abide by the award overthrown, the trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company today threw down the gage to the union carmen.

Referring to the suggestion of the union that the trustees join with them in a refusal to abide by the wage award of the National War Labor Board and select a new arbitration board, the trustees declared such a course would be a betrayal of their public trust.

BETRAYAL OF TRUST.

The statement in full reads as follows:

"We have carefully considered your suggestion that we join with the union in a refusal to abide by the wage award of the National War Labor Board and select a new arbitration board, with your counsel as one of its members.

"Such a course would be a betrayal of our public trust.

"The honor of unionism is now at

ACCUSED OF RECEIVING STOLEN SPARK PLUGS

Thomas B. Cunningham, a garage worker in an Albany street garage, was before Judge Parmenter today charged with receiving 1250 stolen spark plugs from persons unknown to the police. John D. Landerman, owner of the garage, was also charged with receiving the stolen plugs from Cunningham. Each was held in $1,000 until August 28. A search is being made by the police for the owners of the property.

THE IRISH MIND IN AMERICA—THE BASIS OF THE APPEAL FOR AMERICAN SUPPORT

By EDWARD F. McSWEENEY,

Member of the Advisory Committee of the Irish Victory Fund and National Officer Friends of Irish Freedom

The question is frequently asked why the so-called alien races, especially the Irish, who are so prosperous and comfortable in the United States, retain such keen interest in their homelands. The answer is that this attachment is the test of Americanism—for the Jew, Pole, Slav, Latin or Irish who does not feel the mystic tie of sentiment and love binding him to the birthplace of his people is deficient in the highest quality of manhood.

To ask aliens who have voluntarily sought a home in this country to abandon ancestral traditions or sympathies is to encourage a dull and sordid mediocrity fatal to national progress. It is the intermingling of the best traits of the various races that has made possible the finest human product of civilization—the composite we call American.

Allowing for all losses for whatever reason, there are in the United States today more than fifteen million persons in the Irish racial group. For the large majority of these, whose parents and ancestors came to America before 1870, there has not been for decades, if ever, any bond of known family relationship with relatives in reland, y otthe great bulk of the 15,000,000 American-Irish retain full sympathy and affection for the cradle of their ancient race. Race and religion with the Irish and Jew make the

PRINCE OPENS NEW QUEBEC BRIDGE

Quebec, Aug. 22—On the Plain of Abrahams, where more than a century and a half ago the British and French fought for the mastery of Canada, the Prince of Wales today placed a wreath upon the monument to Wolfe and Montcalm, British conqueror and French loser in that struggle.

English and French residents united enthusiastically in paying homage to their future ruler. Great crowds lined the flag-bedecked streets and cheered when the prince appeared, and numbers of tourists from the United States joined in the ovations. One of the features of the day's program was the formal opening by the prince of the Quebec bridge, which has been completed after two accidents that caused heavy loss of life. There were numerous processions and addresses.

PRIVATELY TO BIG CONCERNS

Charges that she disposed of army food at a private sale to two large South Boston concerns and several policemen were made by residents of South Boston today against Mrs. J. S. Fox, chairman of the committee in charge of the sale of army food in the Municipal Building, East Broadway.

A sale was advertised in the Municipal Building today and some 500 men and women who arrived with bags, baby carriages and boys' carts to purchase and take away the food found a sign on the building "Army food all sold." After waiting several hours they threw the neighborhood into excitement by their threats and comments on learning why the sale was called off.

Mrs. Fox, seen at her home on F and Silver streets today, admitted having sold the army canned goods to the Walworth Manufacturing Company of City Point and the Mur-

MUST FACE 'SLAVERY' CHARGE

Dr. Goodspeed and Office Assistant at Whitman Accused

Dr. Frank L. Goodspeed, the son of a Congregational minister, and Pearl L. Rose, both of Whitman, who were arrested July 19 in Los Angeles, were indicted today by the Federal Grand Jury, charged with conspiracy to violate the Mann white slave act.

The indictment of the couple, who eloped last November, leaving Goodspeed's wife and several children at Whitman, was the last act of the local Grand Jury before adjourning.

In the indictment the Whitman dentist is charged with transporting his office assistant from Whitman to Los Angeles for improper purposes.

Goodspeed, who is thirty-two, was divorced by his first wife, with whom he eloped in 1908, three years after their marriage. She was given custody of their child, and he then began the study of dentistry at the Tufts Dental School in Boston. He then met and married a Whitman school teacher, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Phillips of North Abington, and they had a child before Goodspeed completed his dental studies. The oldest child of this marriage was seven years, and there was a baby of a few months when he eloped.

Goodspeed built up a considerable practice in Whitman, where Miss Rose acted as his assistant for a year. She is the daughter of a well-to-do Whitman family, and formerly a church organist. The couple were arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Cavanaugh in a Los Angeles apartment house, where they were living as man and wife.

Eight Mexican Outlaws Reported Captured by Americans

Marfa, Tex., Aug. 22.—Major-General Joseph T. Dickman, commander of the Southern Department, U. S. A., announced here that the pursuit of the Mexican outlaws by United States troops in Mexico would be discontinued and the troops recalled unless a hot trail was found soon.

An unconfirmed report was in circulation here today that eight Mexicans had been captured and placed under arrest as possible participants in the holding of Lieutenants Peterson and Davis of the American air forces for ransom.

It was rumored that the men had been brought to Marfa and are being held here incommunicado. According to the report, thirteen Mexicans were picked up by an American cavalry column, but five of them were released soon afterwards.

The remaining eight were identifled as "bad men," many of them being fugitives from justice in the United States. They are said to have been taken to Tampico first, and then to Mexico City, where it is thought they will be held. It was reported last night their movements in that city had violated during the time that the bandit gang was last active.

All of the troops now in the vicinity of Mexican hostile territory, Major Foothills are accompanied by Mexican officials as soon as the Velops and long range outlaws have been killed in the fighting. It must be remembered, however, that the Mexican bandits follow the same tactics as the Apaches, when pursued by American troops, and scatter in every direction, retreating to a place a short distance away.

Mexican Protest Will Be Answered After "Invading" Troops Are Withdrawn

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Mexico's protest against the invasion of her territory by troops of the Eighth Cavalry, who are following a "hot trail" to an officer and 4 men who murdered 16 and held two American aviators for ransom probably will not be answered until the troops have been withdrawn. This was learned at the State Department today.

In the meanwhile, so far as the state department is concerned, the matter will continue the search for the return of their withdrawal being for the State Department decided. The state department will stand in the decision that for American soldiers to cross the border in pursuit of bandits does not constitute depredations against Americans or property of Americans, or toward Mexico.

The text of the representations filed at the State Department yesterday by Ambassador Bonillas has not been made public and there was no announcements today as to when the answer will be sent. It was learned, however, that it would be given out at the same time the reply, which is expected to be delivered tomorrow, is made public.

Secretary Lansing said today that summaries in press and editorial comment in Mexico indicate a friendly spirit on the department are of a decidedly mild trend. The press of the Mexican republic declares the activities of the American troops are a matter of course and inflammable comments are conspicuous by their absence.

Authority for authorizing a Mexican expedition, the most Mexican officials show no opposition, even over the protest of the Americans. Major-General Bridman is expected to make the trip by way of El Paso tonight.

Carranza Soldiers Rob an American of $12,600, He Reports

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 22.—Albert von Hoffman of St. Louis reached here from a visit to his coffee plantation in the State of Vera Cruz and reported to federal authorities he had been robbed of $12,600 by Mexicans.

While en route to the border, Von Hoffman said, he was held up on a train by Carranza soldiers, robbed of $10,000 in cash and a Masonic charm studded with diamonds and valued at $2,600. Von Hoffman is an American citizen. He left for Washington today.

Another daring holdup and robbery of Americans in Mexico occurred a few days ago in the Tampico district, according to word brought here by Joseph Guffey of New York, president of the petroleum company, who recently went to Tampico to inspect all properties of the Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Steamship Company.

Mr. Guffey was accompanied by a number of company officials. The party, occupying five launches when five miles from Tampico, entering intercoastal canal, the first launch occupied by Mr. Guffey was ordered full speed ahead and a volley of shots fired at the boat.

The two launches that came next were held up and the occupants robbed of their money and all movable possessions. The two boats in the rear escaped by retreating to a place a short distance away.

Wireless Telephones for All Airplanes Now on the Border

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Equipment of all army planes on the border with high powered telephones in order that messages may be received long distances and thus enable officers to keep in closer touch with American troops in Mexico was announced here today by Colonel James E. Fechet of the Southern Department.

The new telephone equipment will permit transmission of messages both ways and thus enable officers to keep in constant touch with cavalry operations. The equipment is now en route to the border.

CAMBRIDGE TAX RATE ANNOUNCED AS $28.30

The Cambridge tax rate for 1919 will be $28.30, it was announced today. This is an increase of $3.90 over the rate last year, which is primarily due to the Elevated deficit, according to Cambridge officials. It is pointed out that the deficit in question is $399,185.59, or enough of itself to account for a $2.558 increase in the tax rate. Valuation of personal and real property in Cambridge showed a total of $125,268,091.

GRAND JURY FOOD INVESTIGATION ADJOURNED

No Indictments at Present, Says Boynton; Will Resume Probe September 3

The Federal Grand Jury was today adjourned to Wednesday, September 3, without handing down any indictments against food boarders or profiteers. At the office of United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton it was stated there would be no food indictments at present.

Assistant Attorney Boynton said that Assistant United States Attorney James M. Hatton had the matter in charge and would be taken up when he returned from his vacation. It was also stated that Hatton, who was the prosecuting attorney for the Government in the Lodge-Peters case, whose office of army food profiteering thousands of dollars, had been called before the Grand Jury.

"There May Be Something Next Week," Says Pelletier, on Grand Jury Food Probe

"There may be something doing next week," said District Attorney Pelletier, after adjournment today of the Suffolk Grand Jury, investigating the high cost of living. The remark is supposed to indicate that evidence sufficient to justify indictments has been presented.

It is said the District Attorney brought out the fact that high prices for meat and other products have been manipulated by keeping large quantities in cold storage.

phy Brothers Clothing Companies of West Broadway, and defended her action.

I think it is proper to sell to the Walworth Company as any other concern which wants to buy a army food," she declared. "This is not charity. It is not the fact the company is going to use this food in their employes' restaurant. It is going to distribute it among its employes.

"How about the several hundred people who came to buy the food, who had to them" was the question asked.

REFERRED TO MISS BARR.

"I haven't got to answer to re porters for what I did or did not do," Fox replied. She refused to answer other questions, saying to each: "You'll have to see Miss Barr."

The incident aroused indignation throughout South Boston, as it is claimed that the employes of the Walworth Company come from all sections of the city and will receive food intended only for the people of South Boston. Not more than fifty South Boston residents have been able to get the army food since the building was opened for its sale nearly two weeks ago, it is alleged.

Yesterday two large trucks drove up and took many cases of food to the Walworth Company's plant and to the Murphy Brothers' store. Several cases are said to have been delivered to the homes of policemen and friends of the committee. Mrs. Fox denies, however, that one order so delivered amounted to 16c.

stake and failure to your organization to manfully accept the wage award made by a tribunal of its own choosing will strike at the very root of civilized relations between employer and employe.

The National War Labor Board reopened the wage award of December 11, 1918, upon the request of the joint conference board. The case was heard in Boston, around in New York, and the decision, which will actually increase your wages 12½ per cent., will cost Bay State car riders one million dollars the first year.

STRIKE AN OUTRAGE.

"Since the award was announced the joint conference board has repeatedly expressed its intention to repudiate the award, first on the ground that it did not agree to accept it, and now on the ground that it is illegal.

"Labor has fought many years for arbitration. It is the only safeguard which the public has against strikes. An arbitration award must be accepted in good faith by both parties, or the whole plan of arbitration becomes valueless.

"The Public Trustees were appointed to protect the interests of 300,000 daily car riders, as well as 5,500 employes. A strike to compel the trustees to repudiate the award would be an outrage against the public. We firmly believe, however, that it would be far the best interests of the public to submit to a strike rather than throw over the most important principle of arbitration—the agreement to abide by the award.

VAREY WITHHOLDS COMMENT.

James H. Varey, attorney for the Bay State carmen, refused to make any comment as to the status of the situation following the brief conference with the Public Trustees today. "I cannot say anything just now," he said. "We are expecting an answer and will act accordingly. When this is settled I will speak for publication. That will be some time before tonight."

The question referred to in the letter, and to the suggestion made in the committee that a board of three Boston lawyers be appointed to determine the validity of the decision of the War Labor Board.

EARLY STRIKE POSSIBLE.

A strike of Bay State carmen, tying up the entire system of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, from Lowell to the River, is possible tomorrow morning.

Notices have been posted in all car barns, signed by Peter Donahue, president of the committee, that a meeting of the men tonight and tomorrow morning at 1 o'clock.

CURTIS RESUMES PROBE INTO UNION

Policemen Closely Questioned Regarding Work of Organization

stories circulated having to do with the introduction of coercion into the union affair by captains of divisions. The stories were to the effect that envoys of the division commanders were telling the patrolmen that if they persisted in joining the union they would be discharged from the department. One captain in particular was singled out for the shafts of the union members.

It is not believed that Commissioner Curtis has ordered the captains to bring any influence to bear in an effort to break the union. On the contrary, the impression exists that Mr. Curtis intends to proceed along well-established lines. He will proceed in the manner already outlined, and feels that in that way the existing situation will be straightened out.

Union leaders say that Captain Daniel Murphy of the South Boston station held his day men in the station until almost eight o'clock last night. The original purpose of the detention was to personally examine each man as to whether or not he held membership in the union. Officers assert that the men were asked by the captain to desert the union. It is further charged that the captain warned the men of certain dismissal if they struck.

QUESTION MEN SINGLY.

Some of the men, according to the report in union circles, were told by Captain Murphy that it would be foolhardy to strike and that if a strike was ordered and they did not care to join in if he could see to it that their status in the department was preserved.

All the patrolmen were questioned singly and the answers they made to the interrogatories will be sent to Commissioner Curtis when they have been tabulated. The union has been officially apprised of this happening.

It is reported that one captain told the men that the lawyers they retained to counsel them had nothing to lose through the present difficulties, as they had everything. He told them that a big fee was being paid this lawyer and cared nothing for the interests of the men.

TAKEN BEFORE COURTS.

Today the following additional officers of the union were summoned to police headquarters and after being taken into Superintendent Crowley's office were taken before Commissioner Curtis: William Brown, Back Bay; guardian, John Maloney, Lagrange street; guide, J. L. Butler, Mattapan; J. J. Dwyer, Dorchester, and M. Dwyer, City Point, trustees; Phillip Corbett, Jodium street, Stephen Dunleavey, Bay State; George Ferreira, Hanover street, Hugh Garrity, Back Bay; Thomas J. Peter, Dorchester, and Stephen Ryder, City Hall avenue, delegates to the Central Labor Union.

While nothing definite is known it is supposed that these men were summoned to headquarters so they might be officially notified of charges preferred against them. It is assumed that they, too, will go on trial with the other officers of the union on Tuesday next. They went into the office of Commissioner Curtis shortly before 10 o'clock.

Mother Ready to Pay When Police Step In; Suspect Taken Into Custody

By Universal Service.

New York, Aug. 22.—How Mrs. Bessie Hannsman of Bethel, Me., was willing to pay $15,000 to protect her five-year-old son, Carl, from kidnapers was disclosed here by police who frustrated the scheme. The boy is heir to $100,000 left by his father.

Mrs. Hannsman received a letter demanding $15,000, saying that failure to pay would result in her son's kidnaping. The letter, crudely printed on yellow paper, concluded by saying $1,000 in cash would suffice, if paid immediately.

The letter instructed Mrs. Hannsman to come to New York on Monday or Tuesday, and walk from Grand Central terminal to 45th avenue, take a downtown elevated, get off at Hector street, walk to a bank and draw the money.

Mrs. Hannsman followed the directions in part, but decided to confide in a friend, who passed the matter in the hands of the police.

The police questioned Mrs. Hannsman as to whether she knew anyone of her name of P. F. Ford, the signature on the letter demanding the money.

While knowing no one of that name, she admitted knowing a Preston L. Ford.

A search was begun at local post-offices for any one calling for mail addressed to either of these names.

When a man called for mail for Preston L. Ford, he was placed under arrest. He denies any knowledge of the letter, however.

NAVY MAN DROWNS IN WOBURN POND

While swimming in Horn Pond, Woburn, George C. McNeil Jr., aged twenty years, son of George C. McNeil, of No. 3 Church street, a first-class electrician in the United States Navy, was seized with an attack of cramps and was drowned.

McNeil had been granted a thirty-day furlough and was passing his vacation in the home of his father. Accompanied by Bernard J. Perrin of No. 39 Campbell street, he went out on the pond in a boat. Both young men undressed in the boat and McNeil dived into the water. After swimming a short time he complained of cramps and went down soon afterwards.

WOOL MEN APPEAL FROM COURT DECISION

Counsel for William A. English and John H. O'Brien, Boston millionaire wool men, now doing time in Greenfield jail for defrauding the United States out of huge sums in income taxes, have filed an appeal from the decision of Federal Judge George W. It is claimed among other things that the court exceeded its jurisdiction in issuing the injunction.

Damage amounting to $10,000 was done to a dynamo in the powerhouse of the Edison Company, Salem and Prince streets, due to a short circuit. The blaze itself amounted to little, but it generated sufficient heat to melt important parts of the machine. To restore it to its former efficiency it will be necessary to dismantle it and to discard certain parts.

Judge Pierce Declines to Instruct Thompson Fund Custodians

[illegible] Judge Pierce of the Supreme Court [illegible] that Richard M. Bradley and Frederick P. Moore, trustees under the will of the late Thomas Thompson, did not need instructions as to the distribution of surplus income accumulating under a fund of about $1,000,000, but might use their discretion in disposing of it.

Judge Pierce at first was inclined to dismiss the petition for instructions brought by the trustees, but at the suggestion of their counsel continued the matter to await a cross bill which possibly may be filed by the beneficiaries, attacking the management of the fund by Mr. Bradley and each of his trustees.

Mr. Thompson, a resident of Boston, died in 1909. He gave by his will a life interest in his estate to his wife, and provided that upon her death a fund should be created and the income annually used for the benefit of seamstresses, needlewomen and shop girls in the towns of Brattleboro, Vt., and Rhinebeck, N. Y. Mrs. Thompson died in 1892, and at that time the amount of the fund available was about $1,000,000.

VALIDITY WAS UPHELD.

Heirs of Mr. Thompson sought to have the trust declared void, but the full bench of the Supreme Court upheld the validity. In that contest the sons of Brattleboro bore all the expenses, and in an agreement which was validated by the court, it was provided that instead of Brattleboro and Rhinebeck sharing equally in the income Brattleboro thereafter should receive two-thirds and Rhinebeck one-third.

The Society of seamstresses, Needle Women and Shop Girls of Brattleboro, which was organized to receive the benefit of Mr. Thompson's will, claim that its members have not received what Mr. Thompson intended they should, but that Mr. Bradley has refused to aid deserving women and has used the income for homes for nurses in Milwaukee, Detroit, Buffalo and other places, a charity not contemplated by Mr. Thompson.

JUSTIFIES HIS ACTION.

Mr. Bradley justifies his action in that respect under a clause in the will of Mr. Thompson authorizing the trustees if they become satisfied after applying it for purposes in Brattleboro and Rhinebeck specified by Mr. Thompson, such surplus might be used for "kindred charitable purposes in the towns of Brattleboro, Rhinebeck or elsewhere."

Frank N. Nay, counsel for the town of Brattleboro, said that the people of that town and of Rhinebeck were not by disgusted with Mr. Bradley. What these beneficiaries were trying to do was to get some person other than Mr. Bradley who would pay some attention to the will of Mr. Thompson. He said that the beneficiaries had not wanted to file a petition for the removal of Mr. Bradley, but that they had to ascertain what they desired without so doing.

LOVETT JUST A PRATTLER, SAYS ACTING MAYOR

Detroiter's Fling at Boston Council Stirs Vigorous Reply

[illegible] replies to the statements of W. F. Lovett, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, who charged the Boston City Council were insane in remarks of that body.

Acting Mayor Francis J. W. Ford, president of the City Council, characterized Lovett's statements as "the prattling of one who saw matters attended to with such dispatch that he could not understand what it was all about."

Daniel J. McDonald, a labor representative in the council, declared that the statement of Lovett was Good Government Association propaganda.

"I did not see him when he was in Boston and other members of the Council did not. Instead of getting in touch with us and finding out about the workings of the Council, he probably got in touch with some member of the Good Government Association.

"Some of the statements he made are ridiculously untrue. For instance, he says that there is only one business man in the Council. As a matter of fact, there are three, Lane, McLoughlin and Hagan. There are two lawyers, Collins and Ford. Watson is a salesman. Moriarty, Donoghue and I are secretaries of labor organizations.

THEY LIVE IN THE SUBURBS.

"Another statement that is not true is his declaration that the suburbanite here does not vote, the truth is just the reverse, fully 70 per cent of the suburbanites voting at the primaries.

In his statement Acting Mayor Ford said:

"This statement from the Detroiter is no surprise to me. It is the second instance of vanity and ignorance that we have had from citizens of that model of city government. We all remember how that army officer of national fame, Colonel Edward L. Logan, told how he would come East and tell the people why our honorable mayor should be defeated for public office if he ran. We allowed his statement to go unanswered, because Colonel Logan needed no defense and we would not dignify his statement with an answer.

"We would not notice the wanderings of this self-important secretary of the Detroit Citizens' League, except for the fact that he alleges certain deals may be 'grown' in our executive session.

TOO FAST FOR LOVETT.

"He terms the latter a private session. It is silly nonsense to assert this with a representative of every newspaper in Boston present and of such meetings reach millions of readers each day.

FEARS ORGY OF BLOODSHED IN IRELAND

Colonel Lynch Says "Drifting" of England Has Aroused All Erin

By COLONEL ARTHUR LYNCH,
Former M. P. from County Clare, Author of "Ireland's Vital Hour."
London Cable Dispatch.
Written Expressly for Universal Service.

London, Aug. 22—Premier Lloyd George's speech contained no reference to the Irish question. Nothing is more significant of the incapacity of the government. It is helpless.

"Drifting" is the main cause of the present trouble which at any time may break into orgies of bloodshed; the government while promised the world to give self-determination to the small nationalities has nothing better to offer Ireland than the bayonets of 60,000 soldiers.

SINN FEIN GROWING.

The Sinn Feiners are adding to their ranks daily, the Irish spirit remains high in bravery and violence before resistance, and I can vouch for the fact that many Irish men in such responsible positions as editors of constitutional papers, who two years ago were against Sinn Fein, have since come to be Sinn Feiners.

I must be remembered that the government is the wholesale provoking nations in suppressing all constitutional movements having expression in Irish nationalism. Hence it is Henry that Irish nationalist soldiers who had fought all over the Western front during the war marched shoulder to shoulder with Sinn Fein demonstrators. The London press has been shy of noticing such facts.

The other morning saw a curious instance of the way in which the news is distorted. One of the big London dailies had this heading:

"Sinn Fein Procession Is Stopped by Orange Stalwarts."

There was no paragraph in the article below that heading containing any allusion to what the headline announced. The explanation is that the editor, fearing to show that Orangemen were as prone to disturbance as the Sinn Fein, had struck out the paragraph but forgot to change the heading.

The last deed of violence in Clare or other parts of Nationalist Ireland is shouted through the megaphone. Public bodies are requested to denounce the crime. Then, as by resolution, fearful lest inattention be interpreted as sympathy with lawlessness. Then the Unionist press holds up these resolutions as evidence of the "abominable condition" of the country.

LESS CRIME THAN IN LONDON.

There are more deeds of violence in London in a week than in the year of Ireland in a month.

But the condition of the country is profound by its own disgovernment has been made the excuse for Mac-Pherson, chief secretary for Ireland, for further suppression.

Remember that proclamation of martial law in Ireland means the prohibition of all meetings, which constitute the very life of Irish politics.

The result of such a policy is to make the Irish population suffer from this military blockade to such an extent that living conditions become impossible.

The government hopes that the pressure of public opinion then will be directed against the Sinn Fein as the cause of the evil. That the Sinn Fein never has been verified hitherto; the population blames the government.

HOUSE ASKS LABOR COSTS IN PRODUCTION

Washington, Aug. 22—President Wilson was called on to report to the House the proportion of labor cost in the total cost of production of coal, steel, copper, oil, cement, lumber, cotton, cotton textiles, flour, meat, canned goods and other commodities.

A resolution requesting the information was introduced by Representative Lehlbach, of Minnesota, at the request of National Federation of Federal Employes to "dispose of the fallacy" that labor costs were represent the chief item in the increased cost of living."

AMNESTY FOR SERVICE MISDEMEANANTS ASKED

Washington, Aug. 22—Amnesty and restoration to civil rights to be sought by National Discharge for soldiers, sailors, marines and army field clerks convicted by court-martials of offenses less than a felony is provided in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Bacharach of New Jersey.

All men who served honorably in the military and naval forces during any time between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, would be paid a bonus of $200.

LAWRENCE TO PAY $3,000 INFLUENZA CAMP DAMAGES

Lawrence, Aug. 22—The Daly heirs and the city have reached an agreement as to what the damages should be in the case of the Tower influenza camp. The Daly heirs asked $15,000 for real and land damages, but the amount of $3,000 was finally agreed upon.

The deal was closed for several weeks by the local health department establishing the influenza epidemic. The amount was included in the special act $100,000 known as the "influenza fund."

WITH U. S. SUPPORT, IRELAND NOW AWAITS HER FREEDOM

land that one preserved racial identity, without in any way diminishing their Americanism.

It must be kept in mind that Ireland was never conquered by the Romans, and so escaped the evil consequences that followed Roman occupation. The devastating diseases of humanity, such as tuberculosis and syphilis were thus kept out of Ireland for hundreds of years, while they were scourging the rest of Europe.

BLOOD OF IRISH RACE KEPT PURE.

The blood of the race was kept pure and clean, and child-bearing was accepted as a duty. Under the Brehon laws, which were in full force in Ireland centuries before Christ, there was security of human liberty and of property. Alfred the Great, England's most famous king, who was educated in Ireland, framed his laws and introduced into England in the ninth century the laws which had been in effect in Ireland for more than a thousand years, and from which our common law has come.

Before the Christian era the fame of the Irish bards had penetrated to the farthest parts of the known world. Music swayed the souls of the people. The proof that the Irish had an ancient culture is to be found in the British Museum. The piteous tragedy of Deirdre and the Sons of Usna, the mighty warriors Finn and Cuchullan, the story of Dermot and Grania have been kept alive by the Irish poets. Ossian, the blind son of Finn MacCool, was writing inspired poetry not excelled in purity and phrasing or in wealth of imagery nine hundred years before Chaucer in England and Dante in Italy were beginning the lineal history of these countries.

A noted Protestant writer, Dr. Bury of the University of Glasgow, has said: "St. Patrick was the greatest missionary in the world's history. He was not only teacher but a nation builder." His conversion of the pagan kings to Christianity was bloodless. He adopted what was good in pagan belief and gave it Christian significance. From the Hill of Tara he began a work which, for many years, made Ireland the centre for the whole world for learning, culture, tolerance and racial unity, which continued until the English occupation.

Many centuries after the middle of the nineteenth century, led the United States in providing education for women, more than 1,300 years after St. Bridget had made it a fact in Ireland. England owes to Irish women the credit for her work by making St. Bridget the patron saint of the women's rights movement. When Baden Powell in England was working out the idea of the Boy Scouts movement he found his model in the constitution of the Irish Red Branch Knights.

When President De Valera said in San Francisco a few weeks ago that if they had the arms on an equal basis, man to man the Irish would be willing to give the British an advantage of ten to one, he was only repeating the oath which every candidate took on joining the "Fianna" in the third century. President De Valera added one to the nine opponents which each knight agreed under solemn oath to meet and conquer or to die in the attempt.

"MOST MORAL SPOT ON EARTH."

Respect for women made, and keeps, Ireland the most moral spot on earth. Ireland is the only country in history that never persecuted the Jews; it has never refused any man the right to worship his Maker in any way he desires. All historians agree that were it not for Ireland culture would have died out of the world during the dark ages. And this made possible the "thirteenth, the greatest of all the centuries," which was also justly called the "golden age of labor."

The Irish, with the Chinese and the Jews, are the only races of all the nations ruling the earth when Christ was born that survive to exert influence on world affairs. Is it any wonder that the Irish race has kept together under the bitterest persecution ever inflicted on a nation or a people and are in this generation proud of the spirit that enabled them to do this. They remember the wrongs of their forefathers who kept the faith in spite of invasion and confiscation; of the days of the hedge priest, when a man's income was fixed by his religion; of the "Treaty of Limerick"—of Drogheda and Wexford; when the "Wild Geese" went from Limerick to Boulogne, and in the words of the Shan Van Vocht, Lord Edward came to the Curragh of Kildare.

Would it be to the advantage of the United States if Irish racial unity were to fade away? When Cromwell in a spirit of hatred drove the Irish to the Connaught, he little thought that he was providing George Washington with the assistance that later was to help to free the colonies from English rule. When under the proposed League of Nations Britain is weaving her web to entangle and restrain the economic freedom of the United States, is it not well that there are those who preserve memories of similar acts, when the interests of the Norfolk weavers was strong enough to stifle the growing industry of Dublin, the prosperity of Irish ports, the ship brought about, at the demand of Bristol ship owners, the law of "British bottoms," and, in our day, when Irish industry was seeking an outlet, withdrew the Cunard line from Queenstown, over night to force Irish trade to be done through England.

IS LOVE OF MOTHER A CRIME?

It is charged that the Irish are un-American because they retain their racial strength and cohesion, as if a man's love and duty to his wife and children interfered with his love and loyalty to his mother and father, or his sentimental attachment to the place of his birth. They remember Ireland as they cherish the memory of their parents and in refusing to forget the wrongs done to her are only following the example of the revolutionary patriots. The Continental Congress, as late as 1750, when the struggle was regarded as hopeless, arranged to have prepared pictures with short descriptions of British atrocities which, according to Sidney George Fisher, the historian of the American Revolution, "were to be shown and taught to every American rebel child forever, so as to burn into their minds eternal hatred and a struggle without end against the independence-hating British brute."

At the close of the Revolution, Franklin was preparing to have a series of thirty-five of these pictures engraved in France. In order, as he wrote to an Englishman, "to impress the minds of children and posterity with a deep sense of your bloody and insatiable malice and wickedness." No Irishman has said worse than this, although we owe to Ireland the wrongs of the Colonies were the milk of human kindness.

As for the statement that the Irish race in the United States are prosperous and because of this should forget their racial ties, this might can be said: Prosperity is not the flower but the test and stumbling block of civilization. When Rome was at the height of prosperity and comfort it was already far on the road to decay. Prosperity is the foe of liberty. Washington, the richest man of his time, being the notable exception to this rule. Democracy by all ages has found its champions among the poor, and has marched on to triumph over the dead bodies of its defeated heroes.

It was the more prosperous of the colonists who, fearing that any disagreement with England might impair their fortunes, snarled at the feet of Washington and his patriot colleagues until the patient and long-suffering Continental Congress drove the Tory pack into exile or death.

The Irish in America also have their Tories, who put wealth and social prestige before principle and race remembrance, but, thank God, they are few in number, and many of them, even if for a time lukewarm and indifferent—as they begin to feel the effects of the educational campaign for the honor of America, which is the purpose of the present movement—are joining it with characteristic Irish vigor.

It could not well be otherwise, for, as was recently stated in a leading English weekly, the stupid policy of the English government was making "Sinn Feiners" out of Britishers who hated the very name of Ireland.

OLD ATTEMPT TO BLACKEN IRISH NAME.

It will undoubtedly be asked: "What benefit is there in recounting the claims of Ireland's alleged former greatness?" And the answer is that it is necessary because the truth is not known, and where it is stated it is not believed. Ever since the American Revolution England has taken every opportunity to teach that the Irish are not a race, but merely a collection of scattered tribes—barbarians, murderers, lazy, given to boasting, etc. As Arthur Griffith says, when the Irish charge England with the destruction of their national and political institutions, the assassination of their people and the suppression of her trade and commerce, the English answer is: "The Irish are a people in a low stage of mental and moral development, turbulent, idle, improvident and intractable, naturally vicious, and incapable of any kind of ordered existence except under a strong hand," which was exactly what Sir "Freshy" Smith said before he was sent back to England. It is what is being said every day by the American Tories who are playing British policies in defending the League of Nations and was behind the expression made by a certain high personage when he said recently in Boston: "I feel like the Irish when I have that delightful sense of irresponsibility."

After twenty years of painstaking research, Mr. Michael J. O'Brien in his book, "A Hidden Phase of American History—Ireland's Struggle for Liberty," established indisputably that thirty-eight per cent. of the Revolutionary army that won American independence was Irish.

Rev. Dr. David Ransay who, in his day, wrote the most reliable history of the Revolution, in which he himself participated, said: "The Irish in America, with few exceptions, were attached to independence, for they had fled from oppression in their native country and could not brook the idea that it should follow them." * * * "The common soldiers enlisted in Pennsylvania were for the most part natives of Ireland, but though not bound to America by the accidental tie of birth, they were inferior to none in discipline, courage or attachment to the cause of independence."

The same was true in Massachusetts and New York. The Charitable Irish Society in Boston was organized in 1735. Its records are complete except for the Revolutionary period, after which the records of the first meeting contain this modest paragraph: "The records of the society have been interrupted because all of its members have been engaged in the war."

COLONEL T. W. HIGGINSON ON IRISH LOYALTY.

The complete answer to the charge that a man cannot at the same time be a good American and love Ireland was made by that sturdy patriot, Colonel Thomas W. Higginson, who said at a public meeting in Boston, "I am as much opposed as I ever was to oppression, persecution of unrest against tyranny, were concentrated into a single burning paragraph that come from his (O'Reilly's) pen. * * * I am not one of those who can criticise a man who was proud on American being not merely incidentally and occasionally, but steadily and underneath it all, an Irishman also. I never have been among those who believed it to be the duty of a Irishman, as soon as he sets foot on this soil and looked around for his naturalization papers, to forget the wrongs and sorrows he left behind him.

"I cannot complain of Rosie O'Reilly, that through life in his spirit he kept the green flag waving beside the Stars and Stripes, any more than I can forget the recorded joy of McClellan in the terrible battles of the Peninsula, when he saw the green flags borne by each regiment in Meagher Irish Brigade come from the second army corps to his relief."

Regarding the Civil War no assertions are needed. At a time when, due to Knownothing dominance, a law on the statute books of Massachusetts refused the right to an Irishman to belong to the State Militia, the immigrants shamed the "Copperheads" by responding in large numbers to Lincoln's call, and subsequently covering themselves with glory on every battlefield of the war.

The stories of the contribution of the Irish racial group to the last war need not be mentioned. In the Northern States it was one-third of the whole. In Massachusetts it was even more than this.

This, then, is the Irish mind. It knows what it has done for America—it is wondering what America is going to do for it. It has given to the United States full measure in blood, labor and loving service. It has added to America the spiritual leaven which, when needed, has, in short, done more for the United States than any other alien race, ten times over.

It cannot understand how the descendants of Puritan parents, who in their time were the most loyal supporters of the principles of Irish freedom, can have forgotten the teachings of their noble ancestry, and especially why it is that the ideals which attract their enthusiasm and support in Lithuania, Poland, Palestine, Bohemia and elsewhere in the world meet their bitter opposition when Ireland is concerned.

AMERICA'S DEBT TO IRELAND.

If, as President Wilson said in one of his messages to Congress, "America's debt to France can never be paid," is it not a thousand times more true that America's debt to Ireland can never be paid, for Ireland's aid to the United States has been continuous all through its history?

It resents the injustice of being the only white race, that, by the will of the United States, is left in bondage.

In memory of the heroic dead and the graves of the martyrs of the Irish race who sleep in every battlefield of the great war from Gallipoli to the North Sea.

We appeal to the American spirit of fair play

By the sacred promises of the purposes for which its sacrifices were made.

By the graves of the countless thousands of the Irish race who have fallen in the various wars of the United States;

The American Irish ask:

Until Ireland—the jewel of the Atlantic—the best friend of America, where its stock is the largest single racial force in the population, loyal, steadfast and true to the United States for 143 years—has emerged from the slavery and oppression of 750 years, and is acknowledged to be of equal importance in the councils of emancipated peoples, and

Until the flag of Ireland floats inviolate and supreme over all the ancient inheritance of the Irish nation and in Emmet's words, "takes its place among the nations of the earth," that the citizens of the United States, in line with its cherished traditions and principles, continue to give this sacred cause their loyalty and unswerving support.

The Irish expect and hope to receive the support of Americans of all races, creeds and condition, and assured by such support confidently await the outcome.

THE END.

New York Talent to Entertain United Drug Company Delegates at Copley-Plaza

The convention of the United Drug Company, which has been in session here since Tuesday, will be brought to a close tonight with a "Peace Jubilee Carnival" at the Copley-Plaza Hotel. The entire first floor of the hotel will be engaged for the purpose for the event.

More than fifty leading actors and actresses have been engaged for the entertainment of the guests. They will arrive here from New York this afternoon and be sent back to New York tonight at the conclusion of their program, on special cars. A banquet, music and dancing are also on the program.

VISIT GLOUCESTER.

Tonight's carnival will be the close of a whirl of pleasure which the "Rexall folks" have been having since Wednesday. Yesterday was "Gloucester Day." The 1,000 delegates made the trip to the Fish City on two boats chartered especially for the occasion. It was the first "ocean" trip for many of the visitors, and as a result, a number of sight cases of seasickness developed despite the calmness of the day.

Leaving Horticultural Hall at noon on special cars the delegates took the boats at Rowe's Wharf. At Gloucester they were met at the pier by the local Board of Trade. Headed by the two Smith College lass June.

TO BRING RELATIVES IN BELGIUM TO U. S.

Reidsdale, Aug. 22—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Prew, Wells street, have sailed from New York for France, where they will remain about three months. They will visit Mrs. Prew's relatives in France and Belgium and will be accompanied back to the United States by her relatives, whose homes were ravaged by the Germans at the beginning of the war.

An Internal Treatment For Piles (Hemorrhoids)
Gives absolute relief from all pain and suffering. Has never failed. Guaranteed.
Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was no remedy for their case.
On the contrary, one dollar will get an original bottle of Myo-Ede Remedy, the discovery of a clever Ohio chemist. When taken internally passes unchanged through the stomach and intestines, and thus reaches the source of the trouble, where, by its soothing, healing, antiseptic action, it first allays and then by direct contact with the inner and outer coverings helps to heal and disappear forever.
It's positively marvelous how speedily it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days. Even in cases that have resisted all previously known treatments, wonderful results have been accomplished. Read one of the wonderful discovery of recent years, and anyone who is discontented with its use can have their money refunded.
They write Mr. P. S. Smith of 2312 Broadway, Lorain, Ohio, says:
"I most highly recommend Myo-Ede Remedy for Piles. There is no equal to it. I suffered for 15 years and tried everything that was recommended. I doctored for years and was a constant sufferer with bleeding piles. I took two bottles of Myo and was entirely cured. Any sufferer can do as I did, will never regret it."
All druggists dispense Myo or can get it for you on short notice. Surely it is worth little trouble to obtain the relief of piles forever.
WITCH HAZ-MYO: What is known as witch hazel preparations are not piles in the true sense of the word. Although this condition may accompany a true case of piles, for this condition Myo Ointment has been prepared, so each one can use the remedy best suited to their case. If in doubt, take the internal treatment also. Write your druggist cannot supply you we will gladly send either of the above, mailed, parcels paid, on receipt of price. Internal Treatment $1.50; Witch Hazel Ointment 50c. Write for booklet. Guaranteed Remedies Co., Elyria, Ohio.

WINTHROP SHIP YARD WORKER DROWNED

Sinks to Death After Calling for Help—Rescuers Fail to Reach Him in Time

Frederick W. Boynton, 32, of No. 332 Beach street, Winthrop, was drowned today while bathing near Nahant and Sewall avenues, Winthrop Highlands. Boynton was an electrician employed nights at the Squantum ship yards.

At the scene of the tragedy is a swimming raft, used by residents of the district. Boynton went for his daily dip shortly before 10:30 a. m. clad in a bathing suit and sneakers. He had waded out but a short distance when he threw up his hands and called for help. Ralph E. Pulsifer, his brother-in-law, who lives at the same address, and William J. Chisholm of No. 40 Floyd street, Winthrop Highlands, rushed to the scene, but Boynton had already gone. Chisholm, after diving several times, brought the body to the surface. Chief of police William A. McNeil and Captain Alonzo Cousins of the fire department were notified, and after working over the body for half an hour with a pulmotor, it was pronounced dead by the district M.D. Kelly and Dr. Benjamin Mendell.

Boynton is survived by a wife, and police officials broke the news of the tragedy and by a daughter, Dorothy, seven.

SUNDAY GOLFERS ARE FINED IN TEST CASE

Competitive Playing Illegal, Says Newton Judge, but "Solitaire" Golf Is O. K.

The Lord's Day League today won the opening round in its battle with the Sunday golfers of Massachusetts. Sunday golf games were declared illegal by Judge Bacon of Newton District Court, in ruling on two test cases following a raid on the Brae-Burn links last Sunday.

The Newton judge, at the same time, found that merely knocking a golf ball about the course "in solitaire," or indulging in any other recreation where there are no participants, does not infringe the Massachusetts Sunday laws.

Edward N. Kimball of West Newton, a piano manufacturer, and Harold Emerson of No. 54 Northvale road, Newton Centre, were found guilty of "gaming on the Lord's Day" and fined $5 each. They promptly appealed, and the cases will probably be taken to the highest courts in the State to determine whether the law under which the fine was imposed is valid.

The two Newton business men were summoned to court after a visit to the Brae-Burn links by State police officers. They were both arraigned on two complaints of "playing" and "gaming" on Sunday. To both complaints they pleaded not guilty.

Judge Bacon dismissed the first complaint, when it developed that "sporting" in their cases consisted of knocking golf balls over the course, not in competition, and without any scorekeeper. The judge found that no matter if several persons were on the course, if they were not in competition, they were not breaking the law.

VETERANS BACK HEARST STAND FOR HEROES

Stirred by C. O. Power's Article on Vocational Training; Send Comittee to Capital

Providence, Aug. 22—As the result of an article in the Hearst newspapers by Charles O. Power, in which it was pointed out that of 153,000 disabled men entitled to the benefit under the War Risk Insurance and Federal Vocational acts less than 5,000 had been aided, the Veterans of Foreign Wars in convention here appointed a special committee to go to Washington and combat the "inefficiency and inactivity" of these two Federal boards.

This action followed the reading of the article in question before the convention by Attorney John J. McGrane of Providence. Attorney McGrane, after reading the article, said, in part:

"I demand to know by what right the 16 per cent disability law has been changed without the veterans or the people of the United States knowing anything about it. I believe, Mr Commander-in-Chief, that the Hearst papers should be commended for their stand in this matter, and that we should immediately combat the attitude of these Federal boards with such discriminating against the soldiers."

FOR SIX MONTHS' PAY.

The reading of Mr. Power's article took place in the closing hour of the session, when Commander-in-Chief Karling asked for new business. A score of delegates holding copies of Hearst papers containing the article, immediately sought recognition. Attorney McGrane was the first to obtain the floor.

After severely criticizing the War Risk Insurance and Federal Vocational Boards he read, Mr. Power's article in full. On his recommendation that a delegation go to the capital, Commander-in-Chief Karling appointed the following delegates to serve as a "legal legislative committee," representing the organization in Washington: Attorney E. H. Hale of Washington, Attorney McGrane of Providence and Attorney Jack J. Singer of Jersey City, who was just elected senior vice-commander-in-chief of the organization.

The convention unanimously also indorsed the motion for six months' pay for soldiers, sailors and marines, as advocated by the Hearst paper. Attorney McGrane said:

"This proposition is in keeping with the article written by Charles O. Power relative to the War Risk Insurance and Federal Vocational Boards, and would probably not have been undertaken but for the untiring work on the part of the Hearst newspapers."

TO FURTHER GOOD WORK.

"It is a pleasure to know that the Hearst publications are on the honest for just such irregularities. The six months' pay for soldiers, sailors and marines is a worthy proposition and there is not one argument against it.

"While in Washington furthering the veterans' propaganda relative to the War Risk and Federal Vocational Boards, I will be only pleased and glad to render any assistance we can for the successful passage of the six months' pay act, which will redit is due to the Hearst newspapers."

Cole Praises Article on Wounded Soldiers

Editor, the Boston American.

Dear Sir:—

I read with great eagerness Mr. Power's intensely interesting article in last Sunday's paper about the way in which this country is treating her wounded soldiers. As the senior ranking citizen soldier of New England who served overseas, I most sincerely thank you in the name of the wounded soldiers of New England for your splendid article.

It is inconceivable to think that this great country of ours is not keeping her promises to her soldiers wounded in her service.

It seems to me that the government is making every wounded soldier prove his case instead of taking the position that the soldier is acting in good faith. If there is any one thing that the United States Government should do as a result of this war, it is to render it impossible for any person to ever say that a soldier of the United States suffered any handicap because of his wounds in his struggle for existence in competition with his fellow men who are sound both in body and mind. The 4,000,000 living soldiers will demand this as one man; and the 70,000 men who lie beneath a simple wooden cross in France are a silent, sacred testimony that the government should keep its faith with its soldiers.

I advise every soldier in New England to read all of your articles, and then write to his Congressman and Senator, and ask them to do all that they can to see that the United States does keep its word with its wounded heroes.

Yours very sincerely,

Aug. 21. CHAS. H. COLE.

REDS MEET BRAVES IN FINAL

Rudolph and Eller Carded to Perform in Getaway Game of Patmorans

Speaking of pastimes,
It's a fact the same
The Braves look like aces
But the Reds are in the game.

By NICK FLATLEY.

P. Morgh and his cunning champions from Reds field arrive in Boston this afternoon. They play the Braves one game and then on to other parts, to show the uninitiated just what new champions look like.

Those Reds have practically started a joy ride for the rest of the campaign. They know they can't be beaten and they know the Giants know it, too. That sort of knowledge doesn't help to show them up as the really great ball club they are. But it's the way things go, just the same.

The great old Reds, fighting that head through the strenuous 154-game series with the Giants and Cubs, found the Reds took [illegible] staff and [illegible] They're sure they can't [illegible] probably they can't.

But the [illegible] Reds [illegible] might and might [illegible] the world. But no Braves Field, for instance, [illegible] more or less like a [illegible] Series in the Spring. They made errors and their pitchers were [illegible] everything.

GOT BUSY AT END.

That was one thing, though, Heney spirit was [illegible] They did [illegible] when they [illegible] pounded [illegible] to capture [illegible] before that Evers [illegible] four or five ways from the Jacks, the Pat, as you [illegible] say in this case.

There's not a doubt in the world, however, but that the Reds will be formidable rence-setters for the National League when the [illegible] Chub comes [illegible] other Cubs [illegible] winning habit, even when they're worst. Reds [illegible] satisfactors club in the league to watch, they [illegible]

Around [illegible] Braves [illegible] the best team in the world. Rogd and Rath are good enough players, but they don't measure up to the Groh-Daubert standard [illegible] the matter of that the standard set by most of the other real champion baseball clubs.

ONE-YEAR CHAMPIONS.

The Reds are certainly one-year champions, as we see them. They have had [illegible] for [illegible] but it hasn't been used [illegible] ing made good, but it gets just about wear [illegible] [illegible] tion is reached. The Reds may cross up up and win pennants for the next decade, but on the face of things they size up now like the Braves of '14, the Phils, Dodgers, Giants and Reds of succeeding years.

Where [illegible] makes the slightest difference in this year's scramble, however. But after watching that dolorous second division outfit [illegible] to get thinking about anything but baseball as she is being played at present.

The Braves stepped out and made three runs [illegible] Rochy Cooper in the very first inning. They tacked on another in the second. That made everything look rosy [illegible] after the Reds had chopped off a pair in the fourth.

REDS CRAWL UP.

Two more for the Braves in the fifth put the game on [illegible] all-tents and [illegible] But [illegible] pecked away one more in the sixth when a double steal was [illegible] bumped over a couple in the eighth, then dented Richard Rudolph for a pair in the ninth.

It was a sad windup for a fairly large crowd that waxed enthusiastic for the Braves at the beginning, but shifted allegiance to the Reds as that team showed evidences of its championship mettle and crawled up from behind.

BABE'S BIG BAT SENDS INDIANS TO DEFEAT

Cleveland, Aug. 22.—Babe Ruth was given a chance to hit a ball and most naturally won a game for the Red Sox from the Indians 4 to 0.

It wasn't a home run scat, the close proximity of the right field [illegible] preventing.

Babe's drive, manufactured in the first inning, surely had whiskers on it. Three on the [illegible] that it just inside the whitewash and which went into the right field corner. The ball [illegible] that it [illegible] back and forth several times before [illegible] could finally [illegible] hands on it and when he did [illegible] Ruth, who had been on first, [illegible] second, and [illegible] third, and finally [illegible] home with the [illegible] run of the game.

Wood made the throw home, but it was a wasted effort. There was nary a chance to suppress Babe at that moment, as Hooper had already scored his line single, to centre, sending the [illegible] base runner [illegible] Both other Reds were on third base, and as McInnis followed Hooper [illegible] attack [illegible] champion with the infield pulled in, [illegible] have the why and wherefore of [illegible] quarter of tallies.

JASPER TAKEN OUT.

Ruth's triple caused the passing of Jasper and the entree of Elmer Myers.

It was a downright shame to waste such brilliant pitching as Myers had [illegible] He usually [illegible] his right and left, and when he finally was lifted in the seventh to make way for Johnston at the plate the fans voiced their disapproval. Myers really should have been allowed [illegible] for that [illegible] hit of McInnis and a hit batsman.

Tony Faeth, who followed Myers to the hill, also did himself proud. However this great slab work was all in vain, the Red sox [illegible] to [illegible] to relinquish the advantage [illegible] against the reason of [illegible] [illegible] getaway being backed up by some herculean pitching of their own.

BECAME PITCHING DUEL.

What [illegible] promise of being a better batting [illegible] at the start, was [illegible] transformed into a pitching duel between Myers and Allan Russell, [illegible] came to pass that each team has a pitcher knocked from the hill. The Indians went after Johnson in the [illegible] chances are they'd still be going if Manager Barrow hadn't sent Rogers to the southpaw's rescue. Grasty shot a double, a beautiful line smash to the centre. Chapman lifted a single to left, Ruth dashing in and trapping the ball and holding Grasty on third. A pass to Speaker filled the bases, while another gift to Harris sent Graney across. Pennock had pitched two wide ones to Gardner when Russell replaced him.

Johnston greeted the newcomer with a fine single to right, scoring Chapman. The ball traveled to Hooper so fast that Johnston, coaching at third, figured it would be risky to send Speaker in and held him up. It looked like a fifty-fifty chance and if Speaker had scored Harry could have raced to third and there might have been a different story to relate.

SPEAKER FORCED.

Instead of the infield being pulled in and would have been the case had Speaker scored and Harris taken third, they played back, with the result that Vitt grabbed Wambsy's hot bounder, shot the ball home, forcing Speaker, while Walters' snap throw to McInnis doubled up Wamby. Wood ended it by missing a third strike.

The Indians were within striking distance in the sixth. After Gardner had been called out on strikes, Wamby walked and raced all the way to third when Wood singled through Vitt. Scott made a quick recovery and whipped it to Russell, who covered third, but Wamby got the edge on a mighty slide in a cloud of dust. O'Neill hit a slow bounder and Vitt threw Stevo out, Wamby scoring.

How to Play Baseball

THIS is the seventy-eighth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton tells how to back up plays. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

The first baseman has less real work to do in backing up plays than any man on the infield, yet has almost as much opportunity to make himself useful as has the pitcher. The instant a runner passes first base on a hit or error the first baseman becomes a free agent and can range at will to protect hand back up plays.

His chief duty on finished teams, is to move immediately to the centre of the diamond to handle balls thrown from the outfield, allowing the catcher to go behind the catcher to back up. On teams which permit the pitcher to handle balls thrown in and other plays them to the plate or third, or first back to second, the first baseman must back the catcher and safeguard plays at the plate.

On double plays in which the shortstop starts play the work is [illegible] transformed into a pitching duel between Myers and Allan Russell, [illegible] came to pass that each team has a pitcher knocked from the hill. The Indians went after Johnston in the [illegible] chances are they'd still be going if Manager Barrow hadn't sent Rogers to the southpaw's rescue. Grasty shot a double, a beautiful line smash to the centre. Chapman lifted a single to left, Ruth dashing in and trapping the ball and holding Grasty on third. A pass to Speaker filled the bases, while another gift to Harris sent Graney across. Pennock had pitched two wide ones to Gardner when Russell replaced him.

The ball traveled to Hooper so fast that Johnston, coaching at third, figured it would be risky to send Speaker in and held him up. the initial sacker. If he permits the right fielder to handle such balls the runner inevitably will reach second because the right fielder, excepting upon extremely short fields, cannot come far enough forward to hold the runner at first, while the second baseman, if he handles the ball rapidly, often can keep the ball and hold the runner to one base or throw him out at second.

In one game, while with the Brooklyn team, Outslaw grabbed two such wild throws and caught both runners going to second while Doyle, in the present second baseman, nailed three wild throws back of first base in one game at Brooklyn and caught two men going to second, one sliding back to first, and [illegible] the other runner to one base.

MINOR HAL AND THE PROBLEM IN HARD RACES

Frank Watts and Plucky Chat Straight Heat Winners at Combination Park

Racing in three good classes on the card at Combination Park today, where the 2:00-for-All pace looked like a hard battle between The Problem and Minor Hal, with the former having the edge because of Minor Hal's hard race on Tuesday. James Albert was expected to keep the favored pair busy though he was not expected to win.

Bob Everett was expected to gather in the long end of the purse in the 2:19 trot, if Proud Peter was not started, which seemed doubtful. A fine field was entered in the 2:12 pace.

Frank Watts upset the dope by winning the 2:23 trot, while Plucky Chat scored a delightful triumph in the 2:15 stake trot. Six heats were required to decide a winner in the 2:19 pace, the second being a dead heat between Baron Marion, the eventual winner of the race, and Maxie Voy.

RING CHAMPIONS READY FOR GO TONIGHT

Middle and Welterweight Title-Holders Both Sure They Will Score Knockouts

New York, Aug. 22.—Jack Britton, welterweight champion of the world, and Mike O'Dowd, middleweight title holder, battle eight rounds tonight in the First Regimental Armory under the auspices of the Newark Sportsmen's Club in Newark, N. J.

The boxers finished their training yesterday, and today each declared that he would have no excuses to offer in case he was beaten.

"I am at weight," said Mike O'Dowd, after stepping off the scales at his training quarters at Lakewood yesterday. "I can afford to rest all day Friday and still be below the weight at which I am to fight Britton. I feel as strong as ever and am absolutely confident that I will win by a knockout. I had no trouble in defeating Ted Lewis and expect to have even less in hanging a K. O. on Jack Britton's chin."

"I will be middleweight champion Saturday morning," said Britton at Cupp's gymnasium. "If anybody thinks I'm going to run away from Mr. O'Dowd he's greatly mistaken. I intend to try for a knockout from the start and I'll carry Mike along at a clip he has never travelled before. I'll make him battle so fast that his tongue will be hanging out before the end of the fourth round and after that he will be an easy victim for a knockout."

KLOBY PICKED TO DEFEAT SHEVLIN

By JACK CONWAY.

For the benefit of the young army of fight fans who have been stopping us on the street and in the cars during the past week and for the rest of New England we herewith toss our reputation into the Prophets' Arena and declare Young Kloby will beat Eddie Shevlin at Lawrence tomorrow afternoon.

Now go out and make your wagers, but if you lose don't come around asking us to give you the price of one ride on a perfectly good Elevated car, as no guarantee goes with our selection.

Fights are tough things to dope. We had fourteen main-bout selections without a loser when Joe Eagan was booked to meet George Robinson. Of course we picked Eagan to win. He was a 2-to-1 betting favorite, which was good enough for us. We had it figured out that he would hit Robinson with a million left-hand punches.

DOPE POINTS TO KLOBY.

But he didn't. Robinson was the bird who scored with the left-hand wallops. He was so far ahead at the end of the twelfth round that your Aunt Whatsher Her Name could have rendered the verdict. So you see no fight is a lead-pipe cinch until after the war revenue band has been given their ten cents on every dollar assessment.

The dope, however, points to a Kloby victory tomorrow afternoon at O'Sullivan Park. He's a two-fisted fighter who is forcing the issue every minute he is in the ring. Since returning from France he has knocked out Phinney Boyle, Charley Parker and Johnny Donovan, the latter being beaten twice. Joe McCarthy, Donovan's manager, tossed a towel into the ring to prevent a clean knock. Kloby also outpointed Harry Carlson.

True, Kloby outweighed his opponents by about ten pounds each. But what other New England welterweight could have stopped Boyle, Parker and Donovan in a row?

Kloby is stronger than Shevlin. He's also a better hitter than the Roxbury favorite. He may be outpointed for six rounds or so, but his style of milling should win out.

BANKS ON SKILL.

Shevlin will rely upon his skill to get the decision. Donovan outpointed Kloby for six rounds in their first meeting, then lost. Shevlin believes he can outbox the Y. M. C. A. champion for twelve sessions.

Shevlin will weigh as much as Kloby and so will be able to rough it with his opponent at close quarters. He's every bit as experienced as Kloby and so will not be outgeneraled.

We still believe, however, that Kloby's aggressiveness and punching ability will swing the tide of battle in his favor.

If you must bet on the contest, we advise you to play Kloby, but don't overlook that Eagan-Robinson affair which busted into our winning streak.

As the sports say, if we could always pick winners we would quit writing poetry and play the ponies, fights, ball games or some other sporting affair.

Joe McCarthy Balks at Jerry Moore as Referee of Ahearn-Wilson Bout

Joe McCarthy, manager of Jake Ahearn, has notified Roy Green that he will not permit Jerry Moore to referee the twelve-round bout at the Fenway A. A. next Monday night, between Ahearn and Johnny Wilson of Charlestown.

"I do not believe Moore would be able to do Ahearn justice," said McCarthy. "Marty Killilea, Wilson manager, is very friendly with the powers that be at the Fenway Club and it is only natural that Moore should be influenced slightly.

"I have no fears of the final decision, but there might be little things come up during the match where Moore would have a tendency to give Wilson the best of it.

"Larry Conley, Jack Sheehan, Jimmy Gardner, Maffit Flaherty or Dick Fleming are acceptable to me. I merely want to get an official who would not be under obligations to anybody connected with the Fenway Club."

When he learned of the position taken by McCarthy, Marty Killilea stated he would not tolerate any dictating from the Ahearn camp.

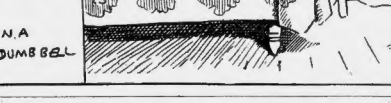
"Moore is a good enough referee for me," said Killilea. "I won't stand for any of McCarthy's hand-picked referees. I believe every referee in Boston is honest, but the club and not McCarthy must do the selecting. I don't intend to have Wilson deprived of a victory as he was when he only got a draw with Ahearn at Lawrence.

"If McCarthy thinks he has such a great fighter, I'll post a side bet of $500 with the American that Wilson wins next Monday night. Let McCarthy cover it if he has the courage to do so."

"TWO AND THREE"

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER"

WITH "DUGS" DAER



SURE, the country is dry for the bird that wears an umbrella and goloshes on his thirst.

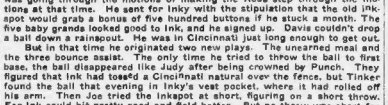
CONSENSUS of opinion indicates that the one best bet is the one you don't.

THEY accused John McGraw of buying the pennant, but the league standings acquit the old boy.

CHIRPING of punk arms, nobody had a sadder wing than Inky Davis, now in the U. S. consular service in Europe. Inky was a great college third baseman at Devill's old school, Georgetown. He threw his flipper out trying to part his hair in the middle without using axle grease. Joe Tinker was going through the motions of making the Reds step through the motions at that time. He sent for Inky with the stipulation that the old infant spot would grab a bonus of five hundred buttons if he stuck a month. The five baby grands looked good to Ink, and he signed up. Davis couldn't drop a ball down a rainspout. He was in Cincinnati just long enough to get out.

But in that time he originated two new plays. The unearned meal and the three bounce assist. The only time he tried to throw the ball to first base, the ball disappeared like Judy after being crowned by Punch. They figured that Ink had tossed a Cincinnati natural over the fence, but Tinker found the ball that evening in Inky's vest pocket, where it had rolled off his arm. Then Joe tried the inkapot at short, figuring on a short throw. For Ink could hit pretty good and field better. But no throw was short for Ink. The best he could do was to get it to first on the third bounce. All Inky needed on his right arm was a few fringes to make it a perfect Turkish towel.

Out in Cincinnati they figured he must have been left-handed.



THE Western teams have no squawk against Mays. He can't help the Yanks to cop the pennant now any more than a bow-legged flapper can horn into the front row of a Winter Garden chorus. And if Mays beats the Western outfits what difference does it make whether he is packed in a Yanks or a Red Sox trousseau. A game lost is only one game lost, no matter if Burleson hasn't resigned. When you're on the wrong road, don't blame the signpost.

GETTING a few smackers down on a winning hoss is like going after a haircut in the canteen barber shop. When you want a shave, the army barbers are only cutting hair. When you want a hair massacre, the barbs chirp that it is shaving day. The best way to win on a nag is keep the velvet and clip your own hair. It looks bad, but if you lose, you will have to do it anyway.

BRAVES started to boost their pitching staff too late. A good pitcher is as essential as the eye in a needle, but the eye ain't much good after the needle busts.

PLATT'S GREAT GOLF PRAISED BY OUIMET

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 22.—In the Amateur Championship, remaining as the last four contenders in this year's golf champion, are three Pennsylvanians and the little tornado, Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga. Two of these Penn Staters are Pittsburghers, Dave Herron and Bill Fownes. The other is that young gamester, J. Wood Platt of Philadelphia.

Jones and Fownes meet in the upper half and Platt and Herron in the lower. It is difficult indeed to make a prediction as to the outcome of these matches. Jones is playing superbly but, believe me, he faces a tough customer in Fownes.

I have played against Herron and know Platt's game since I was forced to defeat by him and I think it is a stand off, with both men having a fine chance to win. Herron had the easiest time of the four yesterday, a fact which should favor him.

Now, then, about my match with Platt. As a rule, I dislike to write about myself and really I am not going to do so. However, I owe it to Woody Platt to say that I consider him one of the gamest chaps I have ever played against. He had me struggling over that last eighteen holes.

I certainly looked to be in a fine position to win the sixteenth. Had I taken that hole I might have won, but that youngster would not let me win it for he holed a hard ten-footer for a half. I did win the next two and forced the issue to extra holes.

On the thirty-seventh hole I seemed in a fair position to win, for I was on the green in two, fifteen feet from the hole. Platt was at least forty feet from the green on his second and had a down-hill lie to execute his next stroke; anything but a promising outlook. I was prepared for anything, and when he not only layed his ball dead, but nearly holed it, I was not surprised.

He took advantage of my bad tee shot to the next extra hole and sealed up the match in a most befitting manner. I know of no boy I would rather lose to than this same Platt because he certainly is a wonderful sport and a grand golfer. Good luck to him.

Bobby Jones outlasted young Knepper and the same is true of Bill Fownes over Hoffner. Fownes is one of the most resourceful golfers I know and a man who has to be beaten, for he will never beat himself.

THREE BOUTS OF TEN ROUNDS AT C. A. C.

C. A. C. Selections

Nate Siegal to beat Billy Duffy.
Tommy Elms to beat Joe Curry.
Harry Silva to beat Battling Bagely.

Three ten-round bouts and a six-round scrap should furnish the fans with plenty of thrills at the commercial A. C. tonight. The fast stepping youths will be seen in action as well as the warriors who can take a punch as well as give one.

The feature number will bring together Nate Siegal of Beachmont and Billy Duffy, Everett welterweight. It will be Siegal's third tussle since he came back from France with the 82d Division. He fought a draw with Shaver O'Brien, then stopped Al Sesra, and is now out to win over Duffy.

Siegal looked much better in his contest with Sesra than when opposed by O'Brien. A few weeks more of training worked wonders with the soldier fighter. His left landed frequently while he moved around the ring like a blue-ribbon stepper.

Duffy is one of the best of the local performers and is sure to carry his opponent along at a lively clip.

The bouts between Joe Curry of New Haven, and Tommy Elms, who hails from Paterson, N. J., should furnish some lively milling. Curry has been one of the big winners in Boston rings, while Elms proved he possesses plenty of class when he showed here a couple of years ago.

There'll also be another ten session affair in which Harry Silva, of the West End, will try and dispose of Battling Bagely of Everett. Both boys are sweet gunners and as a result there is very liable to be a knockout.

There will also be a six round preliminary.

Baked Elephant's Foot

BAKED elephant's foot is said to be a dainty dish, though the flesh of the great quadruped does not find much favor with Europeans. When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

Ann Lisle Writes Interestingly of the Trials and Slight Jealousies of a Bride

By Ann Lisle

(Whose newspaper serials are more widely read than those of any other writer)

CHAPTER CLXII.

Copyright, 1919, Ann Lisle Syndicate, Inc. (A Jack West serial will follow.)

"SO I repeated Pat precisely as it is my wishing the words he might weigh also to forth to that case. 'I'm sorry,' I said, 'I'm sorry.'

We had come to the entrance of my apartment house, and both Pat and I recognized that this was the end of neutral territory for him.

"It's a darned rotten shame," he said fervently. "What you've told me about West being Jim's partner makes it worse—all along the line. But I'll trust you to take care of Phoebe sometime, good-night, Mrs. Jimmie."

It was barely possible, as, of course, I didn't expect to find Jim at home. Nor was I pleasantly disappointed. The apartment was dark and empty when I flung open the door. I wasn't at all tired, and felt that the matter of Phoebe and Dick West ought to be gone into without further delay, so I got into my coral-colored negligee and slippers, took down my hair and tied it back with a ribbon and then established myself luxuriously on the couch with a new book and a wonderful box of candy which had come that very day from "Captain and Mrs. Winston."

Read Mechanically

My book didn't interest me greatly, but I read along mechanically for a while. I had never read myself to sleep before, but I did it this night. The first thing I knew I was dreaming that some one was kissing me and calling me Little Sleeping Beauty.

I slid back to consciousness—there stood Jim by the side of the couch. I thought he looked angry and as if he took my staying up for him as an interference with my newly established freedom, and so I jumped up and began to explain.

"I had something most important to talk over with you, Jim, so I stayed up—the most important thing in the world to do, and you've been or where. I'm sorry. Truly I've not the least curiosity about what you've been doing, but didn't stay up to spy, you know that, don't you?"

Jim strolled me for a second with eyes that seemed to burrow into my brain. Then he jumped over to look candid and impersonal, and stood quite still and cold, though I wanted to cry.

"Oh, Jimmie, Jimmie boy, of course I came where you've been and what you've been doing. I care terribly. I'm not your pal at all, but your wife—and I love you!"

"Oh, yes, I understand that your interest in me is a thing of the past, Anne, and that you care more about your friendship with Phoebe than you do about me. So I hope you're fair enough and sensible enough not to butt in on it!"

"Good gads," I said, repeating the following drearily. "Fifty-fifty—it's almost Phoebe I want to consult you!"

I wonder was the child asked you to talk to her?"

"No, it was Pat. He came along with Tom to the canteen tonight."

"Pat seems to be a great favorite of yours," Jim declared in a tone I couldn't interpret. "Did he come up here with you?"

"Of course not."

"Then who's the lady vamp confidante for? Pardon me if I seem over-inquisitive."

"I got comfy to wait for you. Phoebe's seen a lot of that queer chinese dance hall where we went the night you made your big winnings in Sat Water Oil, and—people are beginning to talk."

"Who takes Phoebe there?" asked Jim.

For Chop Suey

"She goes with Sheldon and Evvy and—Nick West."

"She goes with my partner and two of my oldest friends to have an occasional bite of chop suey, and you—apostle of freedom—want to raise a rumpus over that," sneered Jim.

"But Jim, that back-door chinese dance hall! Pat said it was—horrid and that Dick's reputation—"

"This is my partner, Phoebe chooses friends I approve of a long sight more than the crowd you're running with. And Pat had better look to his own reputation. If your idea of being a pal is to hold me up half the night gossiping about my kid sister and my friends, all I've got to say is you don't know much more about this than you do about—"

"Being a wife?" I questioned bitterly.

"You said that, I didn't!" he exclaimed. Then he limped into the other room and left me alone.

Anecdotes of the Famous

On the occasion when Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, made his last speech to the people—April 11, 1865—there was a vast crowd assembled before the White House, Washington. The President spoke from one of the windows; and the scene is described by Mr. Francis F. Browne in his "Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln."

"As Lincoln spoke the multitude was as silent as if the courtyard had been deserted. Then as his speech was written on loose sheets and the candles were placed too low, he took a light in his hand and was reading. But he found difficulty in handling the manuscript and holding the candlestick, so a friend who stood behind the window-frame of the window took out and took the candle and held it until the end of the speech, and the President, at the close, threw down on the floor one by one as fast as he was through with them.

"Presently Tad Lincoln, having refreshed himself at the dinner-table, came back in search of amusement and began to occupy himself by chasing the leaves about the floor as they fluttered from the speaker's hand. Growing impatient at his father's delay in dropping another page, Tad whispered, 'Come, give me another.'

"The President made a queer motion with his foot towards the boy but otherwise showed no sign that he had heard. Without was a vast sea of upturned faces, each eye fixed on the President. Round the tall white pillars of the portico flowed an undulating surface of human beings stirred by emotion and lighted by the fantastic colors of fireworks. At the window, his face radiated with patriotic joy, was the beloved Lincoln, reading the speech that was to be his last to the people. Behind him the boy of the White House crept back and forth on his hands and knees, gathering up its father's carefully-written pages and occasionally lifting up his eager face, waiting for more. When I recall that that I wonder how much of a father's love and thought of his boy might have been mingled in Lincoln's last speech to the eager multitude."

How to Use Antiseptics

By Brice Belden, M. D.

AN antiseptic is not necessarily a germicide; that is, it may not possess the power to destroy the germs of disease. The term antiseptic is applied to any substance which interferes with the growth of germs, or which hinders putrescence. The poisonous products of their growth upon the tissues of the body, or which retards or prevents the absorption of such products.

The most familiar antiseptics are alcohol, boric acid, phenol (carbolic acid), creosote, corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury), peroxide of hydrogen, iodine, creolin, chloride, formaldehyde gas and Dakin's fluid.

As tissues are devitalized by antiseptics the latter should not be applied to clean raw surfaces. Antiseptics are employed to disinfect the skin and infected wounds. Clean wounds made by surgeons are treated, not antiseptically, but aseptically; that is, rigid principles of cleanliness are followed and infection avoided, thus making the use of antiseptics unnecessary, since they retard healing by reason of their deleterious effect upon the delicate tissue cells.

Carbolic acid and corrosive sublimate possess dangerous properties which make their use by the public unwise in the highest degree, and in any case they serve no purpose that is not better served by something else.

Boric acid is a safe and generally useful antiseptic.

Iodine is an extremely popular antiseptic. A 4 per cent tincture is commonly employed. It appears to be a fact that it is effective even where no preliminary cleansing is carried out.

Hints for Vacation

By Rita Stuyvesant

ARE you going away on a vacation this year? If you are there are many suggestions offered by experienced travelers that adds to one's comfort while traveling. A rather good go by boat, train or motor is how you should be equipped with the proper conveniences, some of the better shops are showing a complete line of travellers' aids for vacation days, and the articles are not only smart, but serviceable.

For train use there is an apron of convenience that contains comb, brush, toothbrush and paste, soap-box, face cloths, cold cream, face powder, manicure set and many other useful articles. The apron is made of crinoline with a number of pockets bound in linen tape to hold the various articles. Tape strings are fastened at the top to tie about the waist.

This apron will prove of great service in the wash room of the train because there is usually no place to lay one's toilet articles while dressing, especially when the wash room is crowded. When not in use it may be rolled up and tied like a comfort kit and tossed away in a corner of the traveling bag.

Every woman knows how unhandy it is to bring home a wet bathing suit after a day at the beach, and for this there is a rubberized case which affords splendid protection. It is made like a large envelope and the flap is closed with several strong snap-hooks.

For dusty shoes at the end of one's journey a shoe cloth will be a delightful convenience if one specifies a well groomed appearance. A piece of heavy flannel or chamois is cut in an oval almost the size of the hand. It is bound with tape and fitted with a broad strap across the back where one can easily slip the hand and whisk off the dusty shoes. A little case of the same shape covers the shoe-cloth and may be made from any dark material such as blue or black sateen or galatea.

Misplaced Praise

A young man, not particularly entertaining, was monopolizing the attention of a pretty debutante with a lot of uninteresting conversation. "Now, my brother," he remarked in the course of a dissertation on his family, "is just the opposite of me in every respect. Do you know my brother?" "No," the debutante replied demurely. "But I should like to!"

A Point of Law

A prisoner in court was asked the usual question—"Guilty or not guilty?" "Yes," responded the man at the bar. "What's that?" asked the judge sharply. "I was asked whether I was guilty or not guilty, and of course I am! Of the two conditions I could not well escape both." "But which are you?" "Why, go on, judge! What's the jury for?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

I'M truly glad that I can say I like a lot of things; most anything that comes my way its share of gladness brings I like the places where I go; Podunk or gay Paree. Some people say Podunk is slow. It suits me to a T. It does not put on any airs, it's sadly out of date. It pulls the kind of country fairs that thrived in eighty-eight. I like it; yet Paree also looks mighty good to me. I like the tropics and the snow, I like the land and sea, I like the weather every day whatever kind we get; I like Sol's fierce and fiery ray, I like it when it's wet. It never gets too hot, I'll say, and gladly will I own I like the pleasant type of day served in the frigid zone. I hold it shows a feeble brain, a pitiful soul indeed, when fellows say a week of rain can put them off their feed. And finds another thing of which I modestly declare the hot or cold or weak or rich, I like that sort of fare. Whatever be the eats you put upon my porringer, I'm sure to find for them a space, they're just what I prefer. I like the people everywhere, I find 'em grand and good; I think they're mostly on the square, when once they're understood.

Fine for Skin Exposed to Sun or Flying Dirt

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the healing sun, air, injure any skin. These despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercolized wax. This keeps skin and face in a state of youthful, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Neglected, tainted, dried and roughened cuticle are actually absorbed. The mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is a sufficient application to renovate a veiled and sallow complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

It is simply splendid for use after a motor trip, an afternoon at the tennis courts or on the golf links.—Advertisement.

Advises Ordinary Buttermilk for Wrinkles and Enlarged Pores

This Good Looking Young Woman Advises Old Time Recipe of Buttermilk Cream in a New Way—A Gentle Massage with Fingers Before Retiring All That Is Necessary.

Beautiful actresses say, "A short massage with Howard's Buttermilk Cream at night before retiring is all that is necessary."

The old-time application of buttermilk and cream to soften and preserve the skin and remove harsh, dry scales and ugly sallowness is grandmother's recipe, and women through the country are availing themselves of its gentle, beautiful complexion and snow white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can obtain in small quantities ready to use at any first class drug store for a slight outlay, by asking for "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream.

No matter whether you are troubled with wrinkles, hard little lines around the mouth and eyes, coarse, sallow, faded looking skin, or simply roughness and redness caused by wind and sun, you will find that all these traits quickly disappear with the use of this old-fashioned beauty recipe brought up to date.

INCREASE WEIGHT AND VITALITY WITH PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Nitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Real Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

The average person is beginning to realize more and more that the lack of physical strength and nerve exhaustion (frequently evidenced by excessive thinness) are the direct cause not only of the failure to succeed in life's struggle for the necessities of existence, but also for the handicap in one's social aspirations. Consider the thin, sickly, angular frame with the well-rounded form which is usually accompanied by the bloom of health and attractiveness.

At the seaside, too, the plump well-rounded figure is most admired.

That millions of people are conscious of this handicap is evident from the continued appearance in newspapers and magazines of nearly assuring fundamental forms resembling those of our globe.

The state of affairs might have endured a long time, because the escape of the gaseous molecules could only go on at the surface of the atmosphere where their paths would be uninterrupted in free space. This would necessarily be a slow though inevitable process.

And at night heat is drawn to itself some part of the atmospheric material that had once been lost to the moon. There are certain appearances on the moon which have been regarded as marks of the former existence of seas on its surface, while the tremendous results of volcanic energies, which the smallest telescope shows, indicate that there was a time when water and steam were abundant in the lunar world.

Far Past Period

But all that evidently refers to a far past period. The moon might have been inhabited when the earliest living forms began to appear upon the earth. Because of its small mass the moon would have cooled off far sooner than the earth, and accordingly its period of habitability would have begun long in advance of our planet's.

However, judging from the aspect of the moon's surface today, there must have come, at some time, a period of cataclysmic upheaval, such as has never been equaled upon the earth, and this in itself, if it occurred after the moon became inhabited, would have sufficed to destroy all living forms. On the other hand, that the period of habitability, if there ever was such a period, followed the outbreak of the forces that so fearfully broke up the lunar crust, seems very improbable. Condemned by its very littleness to brevity of existence as a life-bearing globe, the moon was foredoomed to failure.

Flesh Pink Brunette White

A complexion powder of exquisitely delicate odor and texture which holds its charm throughout the day, imparting to the skin that delicate softness and refinement so much admired.

Nadine Face Powder is cooling, refreshing and harmless, a protection against wind, tan, sun-burn and return of disinfections. Leaves the skin soft and smooth as rose petals.

This exquisite preparation, Nadine, beautifies millions of complexions daily. Price refunded if not entirely pleased.

SANITARIUM IS PROTESTED AT COREY HILL

Residents Take Their Troubles to Selectmen; See Health Menace

Declaring that the maintenance of sanitariums for the treatment of mental diseases continues a menace to the neighborhood residents of the Corey Hill section of Brookline have taken their troubles to the local Board of Selectmen.

In a petition headed by Judge Thomas H Dowd of the Boston Municipal Court, the Selectmen are requested to refuse a license or permit to Mrs. Minnie J. Carter for a hospital at No. 342 Mason terrace. The petition, which was filed by Howard Gray, whose property adjoins that on which the proposed hospital is to be conducted, bears a letter signed by Mr Gray asking that a hearing be granted the petitioners.

SEE HEALTH MENACE.

Objection had previously been made to a similar institution situated for more than a year at No. 332 Mason terrace, and conducted by a Mrs. Brandee. Within the past two weeks these premises have been vacated and possession taken of the frame dwelling at No. 342 and 344 Mason terrace, nearby. It is understood that extensive alterations have been made to transform the dwelling into a sanitarium.

Mrs. Brandee said that the "Rainbow Sanitarium," as it is known, treats tubercular, cancerous tumor, rheumatic and matrimony cases, but not mental.

Mrs. Carter, who, according to the petitioners, is to open a similar sanitarium, declared she had purchased the Mason terrace property as a home and that she could do as she saw fit in that home.

The petition states that the premises at No. 342 Mason terrace are situated adjacent to residences of the petitioners. That the section is purely residential and that there are many children in the families of the neighborhood. The petitioners declare that if Mrs. Carter is permitted to use and occupy the premises for the purposes mentioned property in that section will be greatly diminished in value and the health of the residents injured.

The matter will come to the attention of the Selectmen officially on September 8.

SIGNERS OF PETITION.

The petition is signed by Thomas H Dowd 92 Lancaster terrace, Harry M Hayes 79 Lancaster terrace, Edwin H Risley, 80 Mason terrace, E L Richards, 94 Mason terrace, Mrs. C. D. Priest Says Bible Is Best Book on Pedagogy

The Rev. Joseph A. Dinneen, S. T. L., superintendent of parochial schools, Albany, N. Y., lectured on "Need of Correlation" and "Methods of Correlation" at the Parochial Teachers' Institute held at Boston College High School Hall.

Mr. Dinneen declared: "The best book of pedagogy in the world is the Gospel. Our Lord said, 'Unless you become as little children you cannot enter into the Kingdom of Heaven.'"

He declared that the present emphasis is too primitive but that it is the fault of the State. Dr. H. W. Holmes directed the class at illustrated talk on "The Work of the Forsyth Dental Infirmary." That the last session of the institute are being held

WILSON EAGER TO WELCOME PERSHING

President Probably Will Go to New York to Greet Army Commander

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 22—When General John J. Pershing arrives at New York aboard the Mount Vernon enroute September 3 or 10, he probably will be greeted by President Wilson.

It is stated at the White House today that if circumstances allow, the President in all probability will accord the commander of the A. E. F. this signal honor. The President is represented as keenly interested in the return of General Pershing and of the First Division, and as anxious to be among the first to welcome them to American soil.

However, it was pointed out, his decision will hinge on future developments, especially with reference to progress made by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with the peace treaty.

Plans for the President's Western trip are still indefinite. White House officials said, although it was admitted that if conditions allow him to make the New York trip there was a possibility that he might start West from there.

PLYMOUTH NAVAL DESERTER A SUICIDE

Plymouth, Aug. 22.—When the body of Harrison A. Ginbold, sixteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ginbold, arrived here, it became known that the lad committed suicide at Joliet, Ill., on August 12, after he had been arrested for desertion from the navy.

He enlisted last January and spent some time in foreign waters. Upon his return to this country he wrote home that he was going to the Pacific fleet. When arrested he gave the name of Arthur Harlan, saying that he lived in Aurora, Ill. Questioned regarding the place, he was unable to describe it and was taken into custody. Two days later he was found hanging from the bars of his cell.

Every Service Man Should Start Investment With His $100 Bonus

State Treasurer Burrill is distributing twenty million dollars to our service and ex-service men in checks of $100 denomination.

Every recipient of this check ought to consider whether or not he can afford to make the beginning of an investment with this hundred dollars. There is no better time in history to make an investment than today, for there never were such opportunities to get large, safe returns upon moderate investments. United States Victory bonds, as safe as gold dollars, can be bought more cheaply today than ever again in our future history. No young man will regret the sacrifice he makes to begin a savings account. It grows and grows with the years. It is the only thing that is like the biblical lily of which it was said:

"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; yet I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Remember also Solomon's advice in the Proverbs:

Go to the ant, thou sluggard;
Consider her ways, and be wise:
Which having no chief,
Overseer, or ruler,
Provideth her bread in the Summer,
And gathereth her food in the harvest.

Let's Get Out of Europe and Attend to Own Business

The British Government has taken possession of Persia.

This shows what the so-called League of Nations is worth when England wants to grab more territory.

The British Parliament has ratified the treaty of Versailles, so that England is bound by the covenants of the so-called League of Nations as much as she ever can be.

Yet, without saying so much as by your leave to the league, England seizes a country three times as large as the German Empire was before the war, and inhabited by 10,000,000 people, who are Aryans by race, like ourselves.

England is doing in Persia exactly what she did in Egypt. The British Government, in 1882, compelled the Egyptian Government to put all public affairs under control of British "advisers." The British Government issued a statement to all the world, and particularly agreed with France, that British control of Egypt would cease and the British would withdraw as soon as order was restored. It never has withdrawn. It has annexed Egypt to the British Empire, and has put down the revolt of the Egyptian people with fire and sword, with burnings, hangings and shootings.

That is what is in store for Persia.

In order that Persia might be subjugated and looted, the Persian delegates were not permitted by England to appear in the Peace Conference.

They were refused even a hearing, just as the Irish delegates were refused a hearing, and just as the Chinese delegates were denied consideration of their appeals for justice by Japanese threats and bluster.

And this is the way the world has been made safe for democracy!

This is the way the rights of little, weak peoples have been safeguarded.

This is the result of our sacrifices of the billions we spent and gave, of the blood our soldiers shed, of the fifty thousand American lives lost.

And this is how this so-called league of peace, justice and democracy functions when it runs contrary to the greedy and unscrupulous ambitions of England or Japan or any other European Power.

The people of Persia are peace-loving, hospitable, kind and generous to a fault. Not one European or American has ever suffered assault, injury, imprisonment, execution or legal injustice at the hands of Persians in more than three hundred years.

The Persians want to have a democratic government, want to govern themselves.

They have a right to be free, have a right to govern themselves. But England does not intend that they shall be free or shall govern themselves.

Persia is one of the richest countries in the world in natural resources.

It has enormous deposits of gold, copper, nickel, cobalt, iron, coal and, above all, oil—the new motive power on land and sea.

Persia looks good to greedy British capitalists.

They want to dominate Persia, to subjugate Persia, to make economic slaves of the Persian people, to use Persia as a base of economic warfare and future military warfare against Russia and the still unexploited regions of Asia.

And to excuse their subjugation and exploitation they want our company in Asia Minor—they want America to police Armenia, to provide part of the soldiers and money to build up British power, British trade and British exploitation of helpless peoples.

The only obstacle to this program, as far as America is concerned, is the body of American senators who are standing out against these schemes, who are opposing Mr. Wilson's plan to put America at the disposition of these international robbers.

If Mr. Wilson has his mistaken way our America will be nothing but a catspaw to pull chestnuts out of the fire for England.

We might just as well be a British crown colony, like Canada, as to be the messenger boys and the police agents of Downing Street.

We asked nothing when we entered the war and we got nothing. We fought for our own honor—for our own national security.

Why take now the contemptible role of a lookout and a screen for the big robbers and get nothing but the contempt of honest men and the jeers of the robbers for our pains?

Let's mind our own business. Let's keep out of thieves' company. Let's be honest—like our good old-fashioned daddies.

Let European Governments do their own conniving, thieving and fighting.

There is enough for our government and for us all to do at home—enough to keep us busy without minding other folks' business.

Rent and food are a whole lot more important to our hundred million Americans than any more participation in British or French or Italian or German or Russian rascally politics, wars and thievery. A whole lot more important believe us.

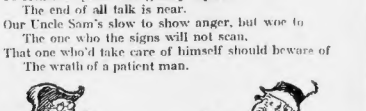
RIDING TO A FALL

By OLIVER DAWSON

In forthcoming ages on history's pages
By studious youths will be seen
A rather brief stanza on one V. Carranza,
The Mexican jumping bean.
In dodging an issue his words are a tissue
Of lies and evasion of fact,
And Uncle Sam's tiring of writing and wiring
Till patience is almost cracked.

When bands from the cactus so boldly attacked us
By crossing the boundary line,
Carranza said Villa's marauding guerillas
Had had too much pulque or wine.
By blood of the slaughtered Americans watered
The faction-torn Mexican soil
Holds graves of the martyred whose lives have been bartered
For fruits of their honest toil.

With long, patient labor his powerful neighbor
Has striven to make it quite clear
To Mexico's tyrant and greedy aspirant
The end of all talk is near.
Our Uncle Sam's slow to show anger, but woe to
The one who the signs will not scan.
That one who'd take care of himself should beware of
The wrath of a patient man.



NOT A FAIR COMPARISON

"Many people," says an English judge, "treat marriage as if it were no more binding than an engagement to go out to dinner." "Well, that's pretty binding, when you consider the present price of a dinner.

DON'T BE TOO TIMID, SON

Some men approach the ladder of success as timidly as if a bulldog were on guard at the bottom of it.

AN EXPENSIVE LUXURY

One bad thing about an actors' strike is that you have to buy a ticket to get a chance to hiss at the strikebreakers.

THEY WILL WANT SOMETHING BETTER

Owing to the present cheapness of money, the members of the next generation will not be likely to speak with much regret concerning the dollars of their daddies.

HER ADVANTAGE

If a woman wishes to take the conceit out of a man she can always do so quickly by laughing at his legs.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.—I would like your opinion concerning politeness after one is married.

Several people have made fun of me because I always say "please" and "thank you" to my husband when I ask a favor of him and he obliges me. Now, I don't see why I shouldn't be just as polite to my husband now as I was before I married him.

What would you suggest?

R. F. R.

Roxbury, Mass.

MY DEAR Madame.
IN THE first place.
YOU CAN be polite.
WITHOUT SAYING "please."
AND WITHOUT saying "thank you."
AND YOU can say "please."
AND YOU can say "thank you."
WITHOUT BEING polite.
AND I know a man.
AND I know his wife.
AND THEY hate each other.
AND OF all the couples.
THAT I've ever known.
THEY'RE THE most polite.
AND NEITHER knows.
THE OTHER'S first name.
BECAUSE THEY haven't used them.
FOR YEARS and years.
SHE CALLS him "Sweetheart."
AND HE calls her "Honey."
AND WHEN they dine
HE HOLDS her chair
UNTIL SHE is seated.
THEN HE sits down.
AND THINKS of something.
THAT WILL make her mad.
AND SAYS it.
AND ONCE in a while
SHE'LL BEAT him to it.
AND HE always kisses her.
WHEN HE goes to business.
AND WHEN he comes home.
AND I don't know.
WHETHER THEY'RE so polite.
BECAUSE THEY hate each other.
OR WHETHER they hate each other.
= BECAUSE THEY'RE so polite.
BUT, ANYWAY.
IF I were you.
I'D JUST be human.
BECAUSE SOME morning
THIS WONDERFUL man
YOU HAVE just married.
WILL GET up with a grouch.
AND IF you leave him alone.
HE'LL GET over it.
BUT IF you're polite.
IT WILL make him worse.
AND IT may start something.
AND YOU'LL probably cry.
IN THE breakfast dishes.
AND IF I were you.
I WOULDN'T worry.
ABOUT BEING polite.
BECAUSE AFTER a while.
YOU'LL MAKE the discovery.
THAT BEING polite.
IS A silly game.
AND THAT real politeness.
LIES IN what you do.
AND NOT what you say.
YOU CAN teach a parrot.
TO SAY "thank you" and "please."

I THANK you.

CONSIDER PROBLEM OF EQUAL WAGES

By Winifred Black

A man told me the other day that he wished he could have nobody but women working in his office and in his factory and in his shop. "Women are quicker than men," said the man who told me this. "They're more conscientious, and they are more faithful to detail.

"They're better natured and better looking and I like to have them around.

"But the trouble is they're always getting married.

"When a man gets married he works all the harder. When a woman gets married she gives up the job downtown and we have to break in a stranger and teach her not to speak to the office manager Monday mornings, anyway, before eleven, and never to giggle when the chief clerk has been out late the night before, and who's important and who's insignificant, and all the rest of the things that don't seem to have anything to do with it, and it's discouraging.

"That's the only reason I don't believe in equal wages for equal work. You break a woman in and teach her the business and just when she's getting to be worth her salt, some young fellow who's making about what she is takes her to dinner and they fox-trot a while—and in a month or so I've got to get a new girl.

"I wonder if the time isn't going to come when we're going to divide women into classes, as they did in the old civilization?

"The mother women, the pleasure-seeking women and the workers.

"It would simplify life a lot if we did."

"And, come to think of it, it really would. Wouldn't it?"

It would be a fine arrangement for everybody—but the women.

It Sounds Only Fair

Equal pay for equal work? Yes, I believe in that—who that is fair-minded doesn't?

If a woman does the same work as a man she ought to get the same money for it, oughtn't she?

She can't rent a room any cheaper than a man, she can't buy food any cheaper, and her clothes cost a whole lot more.

Oh, yes, I know, men are always telling how clever women are.

"A woman can get along on half what a man can, and save money at that." That's what they say, and when we women hear them say it we smile and look pleased—at first.

But when we've lived a while among women who work for a living we realize that the woman who lives on less than a man lives on worse things than a man and fewer of them, that's all.

She doesn't manage—she just goes without. And going without isn't always the most charming thing in the world, is it?

There's John at one desk and Mary at the other side by side they sit, and day by day they do exactly the same work.

But John gets $25 a month more than Mary. Why? Because he's a man, that's all.

Why should that make any difference?

John wants to marry some day, and he has to make enough to take care of a wife? Well, that's so. But how about Mary's mother? Mary takes care of her as a matter of course, and never thinks of acting like a martyr over it.

There's Sarah and William, both of them doing the same work, and William getting more than Sarah.

William is already engaged—so's Sarah.

But Sarah wants to send her little sister through high school and she's saving a little for Brother Jimmy's clothes when he starts in to college.

What Is the Difference?

Sarah makes her own clothes and washes her own shirtwaists and trims her own hats.

She doesn't do these things because she likes them. She does them because she has to, and it takes a good deal of her strength and ambition.

For my part, I wish women didn't have to work for a living at all, but my wishes don't seem to have very much to do with the matter. And as long as Mary must work, pay Mary exactly what you'd pay John—that's the way I feel about it.

How about you!

Street Cars and Elevators Can a Man Own Millions? $1 Worth 50 Cents Disinheriting Wives

—By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Many Americans, bringing home the bacon sold by the army, have learned that there is something in government ownership, national government owns postoffices, local governments own public schools. Postoffices and public schools combined make possible, without friction or expense the selling of millions of dollars' worth of food to people that need it.

Foss, of Massachusetts, is a candidate for Governor on this platform: public ownership of street cars at a five cent fare, taxation to meet the loss, if any.

With public ownership, intelligently managed, there would be no loss. But if there were a loss, it should be met by taxation on wealth, not by an extra tax of six cents a day on women and men going to work.

City parks are run "at a loss" that prosperous persons may use the parks for driving. Taxes pay the loss, and the tenement houses in which the poor live, help to pay the taxes. If it is right to tax the poor to supply free parks and boulevards for automobiles it would be all right to supply five cent street car rides and tax prosperity to pay the loss.

If there were any loss, prosperity would get back the taxes in another way. The street car in the city is like the elevator in the office building. The owner runs his elevators without charge, does not waste time collecting fares. That is better for his building.

Cities one day will run their street cars as the owner of the skyscraper runs his elevators.

Carnegie left only fifty millions. Perhaps he handled altogether about five hundred millions and is said to have given away at least three hundred and fifty millions.

A reader asks "did he own all that, since he could not possibly earn it." Hard to answer, hard to deny that workers produce the money. What should the farmer, with ten calves in his pasture, answer if asked, "do you own those ten calves, since the cow, not you, made them?"

The farmer might answer: "It is thanks to my management that the cows had regular feed and were enabled to raise calves." Carnegie might have answered: "It is thanks to my management that my workers and managers were able to produce enough for them to live on and five hundred millions additional for me."

Mr. Jones with ten thousand dollars thinks Mr. Rockefeller can't possibly own a thousand millions honestly. Mr. Bolshevik thinks Mr. Jones can't possibly own his ten thousand honestly. Mrs. Tiger would say that Mr. Bolshevik, break his back and eat him, asking: "What right have you to this flesh and blood when I need it to make milk for my tiger cubs? You ate other animals. I eat you." Political economy is a complicated study.

Postoffice employes ask for an increase in pay. Of course they must have it. The farmer who used to feed his horse for fifty cents, knows that he must pay more now or let the horse die. Printing presses have been busy. A dollar is worth fifty cents. A man worth one dollar before the war is worth two dollars now, and the world might as well recognize it.

Many foolish men put in their wills that clause disinheriting the wife if she remarries. Such a clause is clearly against public policy and should be declared illegal.

It expresses in a mild way the feeling of the savage chief who leaves orders that his wife shall be buried alive with his corpse, or the horrible institution in India called "Suttee," an institution that caused millions of women to be burned alive with their husbands' bodies.

The modern savage can't have his wife buried with him, so he tries to do the next thing in the way of controlling her destiny. A civilized husband, dying rich, should put in his will: "I hope my wife will marry again. And I order my executors to pay my successor, as long as he treats her kindly, her second husband, ten thousand dollars a year, with my compliments, to take her to the theatre, buy her useless presents and do other things that I neglected while I was piling up money."

A new immigration law plans to keep out workers, unskilled, while admitting skilled workers. Just the other kind of law would be better. This country has plenty of skill, but too few rough workers, diggers, laborers willing to do the hard work that the American does not relish. No carpenter, bricklayer, steamfitter or ironworker can get a job until rough labor has dug the foundations and taken out the iron ore.
